

States, 135 S.Ct. 2551 (2015).

II. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

Section 2255 of Title 28 “establishes a ‘1-year period of limitation’ within which a federal prisoner may file a motion to vacate, set aside, or correct his sentence under that section.” Dodd v. United States, 545 U.S. 353, 356 (2005). It states that:

A 1-year period of limitation shall apply to a motion under this section. The limitation period shall run from the latest of –

- (1) the date on which the judgment of conviction becomes final;
- (2) the date on which the impediment to making a motion created by governmental action in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States is removed, if the movant was prevented from making a motion by such governmental action;
- (3) the date on which the right asserted was initially recognized by the Supreme Court, if that right has been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made retroactively applicable to cases on collateral review; or
- (4) the date on which the facts supporting the claim or claims presented could have been discovered through the exercise of due diligence.

28 U.S.C. § 2255(f).

With regard to § 2255(f)(1), the judgment became final on April 20, 2015, when the time to appeal expired. See Fed. R. App. P. 4(b)(1)(A)(i) (providing for 14-day period to appeal from judgment); United States v. Plascencia, 537 F.3d 385, 388 (5th Cir. 2008) (when a federal prisoner does not appeal a conviction, it becomes final for purposes of § 2255 upon the expiration of time to file an appeal). Movant does not allege that government action prevented him from filing a § 2255 petition earlier under § 2255(f)(2). The facts supporting his claim arose when he was sentenced, so § 2255(f)(4) does not apply.

A. Newly Recognized Right

Movant cites Johnson as a basis for his motion. In Johnson, the Supreme Court held that the imposition of an increased sentence under the residual clause of the Armed Career Criminal Act (ACCA), 18 U.S.C. § 924(e)(1), (2)(B) (regarding a prior conviction that “otherwise involves conduct that presents a serious potential risk of physical injury to another”), violates the Constitution’s guarantee of due process because the residual clause is unconstitutionally vague. Johnson, 135 S. Ct. at 2563. The holding of Johnson is retroactively available on collateral review. Welch v. United States, 136 S.Ct. 1257, 1268 (2016). Section 2255(f)(3) provides that the one-year limitations period runs from “the date on which the right asserted was initially recognized by the Supreme Court, if that right has been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made retroactively applicable to cases on collateral review.”

Movant was not sentenced under the ACCA, but he contends that the residual clause of a sentencing guideline is unconstitutional in light of Johnson. Johnson does not apply to the sentencing guidelines, and the guidelines are not subject to a vagueness challenge under the Due Process Clause. Beckles v. United States, 137 S.Ct. 886, 895 (2017). Johnson did not announce a newly recognized right regarding the constitutionality of the sentencing guidelines, so § 2255(f)(3) does not apply. See Clayton v. United States, No. 3:16-CV-1837-L, 2017 WL 3880723 at *1-2 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 1, 2017), rec. adopted, 2017 WL 3726814 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 30, 2017).

Because the latest of the dates under § 2255(f) is the date that Movant’s conviction became final, he had until April 20, 2016, to file his § 2255 motion. He did not file his § 2255 motion until June 27, 2016, at the earliest.<sup>2</sup> It is untimely in the absence of equitable tolling.

B. Equitable Tolling

“[T]he statute of limitations in § 2255 may be equitably tolled in ‘rare and exceptional circumstances.’” United States v. Patterson, 211 F.3d 927, 930 (5th Cir. 2000). “The doctrine of equitable tolling preserves a [party’s] claims when strict application of the statute of limitations would be inequitable.” Davis v. Johnson, 158 F.3d 806, 810 (5th Cir. 1998) (quoting Lambert v. United States, 44 F.3d 296, 298 (5th Cir. 1995)). It “applies principally where [one party] is actively misled by the [other party] about the cause of action or is prevented in some extraordinary way from asserting his rights.” See Coleman v. Johnson, 184 F.3d 398, 402 (5th Cir. 1999) (quoting Rashidi v. American President Lines, 96 F.3d 124, 128 (5th Cir. 1996)). In the context of a habeas petition filed by a state prisoner, the Supreme Court has stated that a habeas petitioner is entitled to equitable tolling only if he shows that: 1) he has been pursuing his rights diligently, and 2) some extraordinary circumstance prevented a timely filing. Holland v. Florida, 130 S.Ct. 2549, 2562 (2010), citing Pace v. DiGuglielmo, 544 U.S. 408, 418 (2005). “[E]quity is not intended for those who sleep on their rights.” Covey v. Arkansas River Co., 865 F.2d 660, 662 (5th Cir. 1989). Furthermore, Movant bears the burden to show entitlement to equitable tolling. Phillips v. Donnelly, 223 F.3d 797, 797 (5th Cir. 2000) (per curiam). Courts must examine each case in order to determine if there are sufficient exceptional circumstances that warrant equitable tolling. Fisher v. Johnson, 174 F.3d 710, 713 (5th Cir. 1999).

Movant has not demonstrated that he diligently pursued his rights or that extraordinary circumstances prevented him from filing his motion to vacate earlier so as to warrant equitable tolling. Nor does he assert any other basis for equitable tolling. His § 2255 motion is untimely.

III. RECOMMENDATION

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SERVICE AND NOTICE OF RIGHT TO APPEAL/OBJECT

A copy of these findings, conclusions and recommendation shall be served on all parties in the manner provided by law. Any party who objects to any part of these findings, conclusions and recommendation must file specific written objections within 14 days after being served with a copy. See 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b). In order to be specific, an objection must identify the specific finding or recommendation to which objection is made, state the basis for the objection, and specify the place in the magistrate judge's findings, conclusions and recommendation where the disputed determination is found. An objection that merely incorporates by reference or refers to the briefing before the magistrate judge is not specific. Failure to file specific written objections will bar the aggrieved party from appealing the factual findings and legal conclusions of the magistrate judge that are accepted or adopted by the district court, except upon grounds of plain error. See Douglass v. United Servs. Automobile Ass'n, 79 F.3d 1415, 1417 (5th Cir. 1996).
